AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

NOT TO PAY FOR WHISKEY AND CIGARS. THE AUDITING COMMISSION DECIDES NOT TO PASS THE BILLS OF P. J. MONTAGUE

AND OTHERS. The commission to audit the Columbian tion bills decided yesterday not to pass the bills of P. J. Montague for $431 for refreshments, consisting of "Old Crow" whiskey and "Perfecto" cigars furished to the Aldermen, on the ground that they were private and not public expenses. Similar action was taken in regard to the bill of the Clarendon Hotel for $547.50 for luncheons furnished to the committee of the Aldermen. As these bills have been paid, suits to recover the money will have to

When the bill of George F. Miller for $1,285.50 for the dinner in Prospect Park after the celebration was taken up it was considered at length. City Auditor Weber said it was a dinner given to Grand Marshal Catlin and his staff, General McLeer and his staff and the officers of the 8th Regiment, of New-York. Controller Corwin said it was a private and not a public entertainment.

Alderman Heaney, of the committee, was called upon to explain the matter. He said that there were 300 dinners at $2 each, 191 bottles of champagne nd some mineral waters. The caterer was directed to provide for 400 or 500 people. The committee felt that it was authorized to incur the expense. At that it was authorized to incur the expense. At the Bridge opening $10,000 had been spent by the city in the celebration; at the centennial of the Constitution $12,000 had been spent by the city for a dinner at the Academy of Music, where Mayor Chapin, ex-Mayors Whitney and Schroeder and other public men sat at the head of the table. Mr. Heaney said that there were no adverse comments upon the expenditures at that time. Now it was a matter of $1,280 and then it was a matter of $1,280 and then it was a matter of $1,260. In 1885 the Common Council had paid the bills for coaches and other expenses in connection with the funeral of General Grant. Controller Corwin had been one of the Aldermen who voted for the payment, It was not decided by the commission what so do with the bill.
